

ELEM 3000 Teaching Creative Arts
4 credit hours

Tuesdays, 5 p.m. – 7:30 p.m.

January 9 through May 3, 2017

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Auburn Montgomery Campus: 101E Education Building

For those interested in studying Elementary and/or Early Childhood Education

Course Purpose: The purpose of Elem 3000 is to provide future early childhood and elementary teachers with the ability to plan and implement art and music lessons to enrich all areas of the curriculum. A wide variety of materials and media will be reviewed, as well as basic learning and child development theory. This course illustrates the philosophy that school programs can teach academic content using the arts.

Course Instructor and Information: Dr. Jan Hogan. jhogan3@aum.edu. January 9 through May 3, 2017. No textbook is required; however, purchase of supplies will be necessary. This course is on the required list of courses for the Childhood Education program at Auburn Montgomery and leads to Alabama teacher certification in both Elementary and Early Childhood Education (birth through grade 6). Students are prepared for a career in public, private, or home-schooling education. The complete Childhood Education Program Plan can be found at <http://education.aum.edu/academic-programs/undergraduate-programs/childhood-education>.

Students interested in other areas of study at the college level are welcome in this course; however, please consult a university advisor to determine if this course will satisfy elective requirements in other programs of interest.
